East-West Tension to Continue, Ike Warns

WASHINGTON (AP)-Presldent Eisenhower lauded the Atlantic alliance today as a powerful barrier against Comunism but cautioned the allies to prepare for more years of tension and bickering with Russia.

He called on the free world for unity, strength and perse-verance to win the struggle for a true and lasting peace and threats". He said:

"Those who respect the dig-nity-of man will not fail before the magnitude of the task."
He offered every possible negolation with Russia which holds "promise of constructive of the 10th anniversary meet-ing of the NATO council of foreign ministers. Before him was an audience of 1,400 cabinet members, allied diplomats, Western military leaders and world press representation.

Ranged in a semi-circle on the stage behind him were the foreign ministers or other delegation chiefs of the 15 allied governments, their flags colorful in the focus of floodNATO flag high over all at the rear of the stage.

The NATO chiefs came back to the birthplace of their alliance with military pomp a guard of honor on Constitution Avenue and military bands in side and outside the great hall in which the first assemblage of allied foreign ministers was held 10 years ago to sign the treaty, on April 4, 1949.

They marched in through a drizzling rain, with hopeful weather. Eisenhower and the other

Soviet Plot Revealed In Mexico

MEXICO CITY (AP) - Informed sources said today that investigation of the Easter has uncovered a Communist plot to upset Mexico's social order by a chain of strikes in key industries.

More than 300 confessions from rail strikers are reported to have revealed this goal.

The Mexican government has linked two Soviet embassy officials with the plot and ordered them to get out of the country Friday.

A reliable Mexican source said the Soviet embassy gave 1,000,000 pesos about $80,000 to strike agitators, but secret police trailing a leftist union leader seized the cash,

Vacuum in the Centre

AS HE ENJOYS A WELLearned holiday, Premier Bennett is meditating a pretty obvious political strategy. His basic plan, designed for an autumn election if that looks attractive, already is clear-he intends to polarize the politics of British Columbia between right and left; or, as he will put it in over-simplified terms, between free enterprise and socialism.

His strategy, if it works, would leave no room for any party but Social Credit and the CCF. He is trying to re-establish the straight, two-party system which the CCF, in the 30s, and Social Credit in the 50s, completely disrupted.

To this end, of course, the Liberal and Conservative parties must be destroyed, or at least reduced to impotence. And in his great plan Mr. Bennett certainly is receiving the generous help of the Conservative and Liberal leaders.

Perhaps the most interesting question in provincial politics, as an election approaches next autumn or next spring, is whether the old parties can revive themselves and disrupt Mr. Bennett's strategy. That remains to be seen but one thing is certain-the old parties cannot revive themselves by the methods, or of methods, they are now pursuing

Many British Columbians, perhaps a majority, will see at once that the polarization of our politics between the extreme of right and left is highly undesirable. To be sure, it would suit Mr. Bennett admirably if it kept Social Credit in office for a time as the self-appointed champion of free enterprise, as the only reliable opponent socialism. In the long run it should suit the CCF also, for if it could make itself the only effective opposition to the Government it would almost surely come to office, as oppositions usually do, in due

But it wouldn't suit a great body of voters who distrust extremes in politics with all their strains and class conflicts, the continual eruptions and sensations that we have been witnessing during the last year

If these things are to be avoided, probably in still more distracting form, British Columbia needs above all a party of moderation, not based on any particular class or interest, a party which could rescue our politics from their present ex-cursions and alarms, most of them meaningless, all of them divisive and

Since the Government is widely unpopular, and since the CCF per sists in an ideology which British Columbia has always rejected, there is a great opportunity today for a party of the centre. There is a vacuum to be filled. But is either the Liberal or Conservative party ready to fill it?

The vacuum assuredly cannot be filled, the new polarization of pol-itics cannot be prevented, unless the old parties are prepared to offer much more than criticism of the Government and the Opposition. .

They will make no progress merely by sniping at the familiar sins of the Government and the economic fallacies of the CCF. They must have policies of their own, especially, at this time, policies on the immediate problems of management and labor. If they propose such policies we have not heard of them. If, for example, Mr. Laing and Mr. Finlayson have said any thing significant about the new labor legislation, the core of contemporary politics, their words have not reached the public.

The Conservative party held a convention last autumn, re-elected Mr. Finlayson but laid down no understandable policy. Since then it has developed no new ideas and none of Mr. Diefenbaker's magic has rubbed off on it.

The Liberal party intends to hold a convention shortly. Will it have any new ideas to offer, any new leaders, any formidable candidates?

Or will the chance to forestall Mr. Bennett's strategy be lost by default? That question must be answered soon. Mr. Bennett will not postpone his election to suit his committee member ask their respective councils to approve a joint $15,000 budget to cover parks under joint jurisdiction, one-third from Saanich, two-thirds from Victoria.

Provided the councils agree, the operation of the parks this year will be assured. That makes sense and indicates a reconciliation between representatives of the two municipalities concerned.

Of broader interest is the suggestion from the committee that the Greater Victoria Water Board buy tion in an atmosphere of restore and develop parks at Beaver and amity in inter-municipal affairs.

earlier suggestion pigeon-holed when the amalgamation issue was raised.

According to estimates by the city manager, the parks in question could be bought and run for 13 cents a month added to the bills of consumers served by the water

The proposal has two major points in its favor. If the property were purchased by the Greater Victoria board, the city would realize on a tangible asset-as it should. And if the cost, not only of acquiring the land but of maintaining the parks there, were distributed among all water users, they would, in fact, become the financial responsibility of the whole commu-nity. Since the tracts are valuable for community use, the charge seems equitable.

The scheme looks sound. It should receive favorable consideration in an atmosphere of restored

But it seems almost no time since the wordpassed around at school in geography and civics classes was that Canada had 8,000,000 people. That figure was not exceeded until well after the First Great War. Today it is doubled and the middle-aged and elderly may wonder where the population can be hiding.

The expanse of Canada has not increased. The inhabited part is still only a strip along the southern has grown, the towns have become cities, many of the villages have become towns. The populated centres have pushed out into the surregiding countryside and the woods and fields have been swallowed up almost overnight. Victoria is a case in point. So today we are 17,340,000 strong—not large as many nations go, but growing. And it will take much less time to double again than it did before. It is part of an inevitable world movement whose ulti-mate results cannot be calculated.

The predominance of non-white opulation is attributed to a trend on the part of more prosperous people to establish homes in the Virginia and Maryland suburbs, leaving the central area to people earning lower incomes. Who Does the Thinking?

SIX months after the event we are casually informed that a layer of radio-active stuff has been spread above our planet's atmosphere and now seems

The environment, throughout the earth's atmosphere, and above it, is being chemically changed not by public vote but by a few men whose names we don't even know.

WE do know, however, the names of the two men, only two, whose fingers clutch the ultimate, lethal trigger. Mr. Khrushchev won't tell us what he is thinking about. Mr. Eisenhower cannot tell us much, lest he inform the Hence, amid a torrent of sound, the great silence under a hard, radio-active sky. After centuries of struggle for the right to run our own affairs, we find these two men with more power than any ancient Caesar ever possessed, the simple power to eliminate mankind.

To be sure, a minority of mankind, the American electorate, has the right to change the presidential finger on the trigger every four years, but the new finger, whoever owns it, will obey a single mind in the end. Thus it must be. There is no time for an election, even for a cabinet consultation, no time for anything but instant decision if the missiles start to fly.

GOVERNMENT of the people, by the people for the people may have been possible in Lincoln's day. It is possible in ordinary decisions. It not possible in the final decision which, if once taken, must make all other decisions irrelevant, and probably forgotten in one sudden flash.

Hence the new and extraordinary importance of choosing the right men to make the right decisions. If Mr. Krushchev, for example—chosen no knows quite how-turns out to be the wrong man the consequences could be quite serious. Or if the American people by any chance elected a president who was not a statesman of genius, or was old, or sick or tired, the wrong decision might result.

BUT even assuming that the ultimate decision will never arise, countless lesser decisions are being made every day by unknown persons who might be glad to tell us what they are doing but cannot.

They cannot for the obvious reason that we do not speak their language. Without years of higher education no man can understand the language of science or begin to judge, for instance, whether the atmosphere is steadily being poisoned by non-elected persons.

Elected parliaments hardly try to discuss these questions but spend their time discussing such matters as budgets ta es and interest rates important matters, no doubt, but not quite as important as the survival of our species. What else can they do when the language of science is not translatable?

THUS in Marx's classless society of Russia, and in the Founding Fathers' classless society in America where all men are born free and equal, we have established the most sacred elite ever known. We are lucky, at this point of peril, to have that elite but we cannot communicate with it, we cer tional methods of democracy

BUT the new situation has not de veloped overnight. It has been developing for quite a while and may have been inevitable from the invention the steam engine,

For once man began to master the principle of mechanical power it was certain that he would eventually master powers like the atom which no collective assembly of voters could understand, much less control. And if all this does not cause the Common Man to think furiously about the future of democracy itself I don't know what will.

Therein lies the real dilemma, deeper than science, more difficult than the comb. The dilemma is the average man mind which would rather do anthing than think, which demands the right to decide but prefers to let someone else do the thinking.

English top tailoring is, I think, about skilled a craft as nuclear physics, and to become a Savile Row tailor's cutter can take about as long an appren-ticeship as it does to become a doctor. Did you know, for instance, there there are 115 different pieces in a jacket, a waistcoat, and even a simple pair of trousers is made up of no less than 60 different pieces? Yet look for a moment at the finished job. Langford-Colwood Hospital

I wish to make a suggestion which I think should bear some thought by civic leaders.

I would like to propose the building of a small hospital equipped to handle all emergency cases around the Col-wood-Langford area. I'm sure that most people will agree with me on my views in this case.

Between Victoria and Duncan there are no hospitals to handle emergency cases and such a hospital built in above-mentioned area could serve the areas of south Shawnigan, Sooke, Met-chosin, Happy Valley, Langford and Colwood. This would also help alleviate the congested conditions in both of Victoria's hospitals.

Looking to the future something of this nature will have to be done as time cident.

Mr. George Replies

On Monday, March 30th, you published a letter signed "A Voter," which asked what was the policy of the Progressive Conservative Party in British lumbia in regard to the development of the Peace River area and whether or not I was in agreement with the Provincial Leader Deane Finlayson.

I made my stand quite clear when I said that the Social Credit arrangement with Mr. Wenner-Gren was ordid scheme. Mr. Finlayson made his stand equally clear when he said that Mr. Wenner-Gren should not be permitted to develop the Peace River any purpose whatsoever. He made this st tement on television over the CBC network on Monday, March 30th, during a 7.30 to 7.45 broadcast.

Mr. Finlayson and I both support the development of the Peace River country. I feel however that before untold millions of mineral wealth and thousands of acres of agricultural land are flooded the case for electrical energy from the use of Canadian uranium should be fully investigated. Such an investigation might save future generations hundreds of millions of dollars in high fixed charges for electricity which at that time might be produced for a quarter of the current cost.

It is inconceivable that a man of Wenner-Gren's reputation would actually put any of his own money into scheme that was not protected by government in power for at least a scheme that the first five years. Many of us feel that since this mandate is necessary to Mr. Wenner-Gren, Social Credit will call a provincial election by early fall. J. A. A. GEORGE.

Ready for Emergency

Over the last few years a tremendous amount has been said and written on civil defence. A great deal of tax-payers' money has been spent ostensibly on preparing for a war emergency. And yet, as far as it seems to relate to the main body of the population, nothing has been achieved.

It is generally accepted that an attack, if it comes, will be a sudden affair. There will be no previous declaration of war. We understand that any such attack will be preceded by a warning unless the "lines" running across the northern part of our continent will by then have become entirely In any case the best warning that can be expected will provide insufficient time in which to organize the evac-uation of the majority of the people of Victoria and to prepare for the housing, feeding, etc., in other areas of the evacuees. If a warning of an impending attack is received it is natural to expec that there would be a huge scramble to get out of the city as quickly as possible and the obvious area to flee to will be the Saanich Peninsula where, as things now seem to stand, the in-habitants will be expected to accomodate thousands of excited people with-out in any way being prepared to do so.

Any preparations which the country folk might make to take care of themselves in such an emergency would be cleaned-out in an hour by fleeing people who have made no preparations for

I live about twenty miles from Victoria and, like most others similarly placed, would co-operate to the full in any prearranged scheme.

Seeing that nothing tangible seems to be hatching which would take care of those unfortunates forced to leave their homes at short notice I decided to start something on my own. I have calculated that my little dwelling could provide shelter for about ten people, maybe one or two more in summer With this in mind I have started to contact people I know/in Victoria and those spoken to are enthusiastic about the idea. The plan is that those ten or twelve people will store ample bedding, canned foods, and any other essentials in my attic and basement. There will be a supply of candles, oil lamps, etc., to meet the situation and also a supply of containers to hold water until our normal supply is proved safe.

With simple arrangements such as these, immediately the warning is given, and assuming that evacuation has been ordered to take place under such cir-cumstances, those in this little scheme will make a bee-line for this house where the preparations they had made before hand will assure accommodation, etc., without the least possible fuss or bother. A battery radio will also be

I feel that if this plan, or something like it, became general throughout the area the people of Victoria and district could put Civil Defence out of their minds and boast of the only well-organized area in Canada.

Regarding the matter of flowers sent to funerals, I do not believe strik ing a blow at the flower growers and florists business that means at livelihoods and regular and temporary em-ployment—is the right solution of the outcry against what is waste of flowers on graves.

I have long felt that flowers should be sent as sprays only, except a family wreath, that after the funeral the flowers in plastic containers should be taken or sent to old pensioners, such as those living in cabins, shacks and rooming houses, those who love flowers (as many do) and have none—no gardens

Labor and Lancashire

By ANTHONY HOWARD, from Manchester

over the East Harrow result, the Labor party has already lifted its eyes towards Lancashire. This is not surprising; for the last two months the public opinion polls have been proclaiming that it is in the North -and not in London marginal con-stituencies—that Labor is gaining ground.

At least one Sunday newspaper column has been written in a lean week end on the theme that the next elec tion, more than ever, will be a civil war between North and South. And Lancashire, it has been said, will pro-vide the key.

This, of course, is one of the legends of British politics. "As Lancashire (not to say Salford) goes, so goes the

It is easy to see how the theory took root. Lancashire (including Manchester and Liverpool) has a greater concentration of parliamentary seats, totalling 62, than any other single area in the country; even the London metropolitan boroughs number only 42.

And, on top of that, Lancashire is evenly divided; at the moment the tally is called at 31 seats for Labor, 30 for the Conservatives, and one for the Liberals.

Moreover, Lancashire has always been marginally more Conservative, (in 1955 the Conservatives had one seat less than the Labor party, but they had more votes) than any other industrial part of the country. The Pennines form a kind of domestic political iron-curtain.

Preserves Allegiance

However volatile Yorkshire and the rest of the industrial North may be, Lancashire preserves its own allegiance and keeps its own counsel. If it deserts the Conservative standard (as it did in 1924, 1929, and 1945) then things must be black.

The myth has a certain historical foundation, but it has now little scientific basis. In 1945 Labor gained 31 seats in Lancashire—almost one-fifth of its total gains throughout the country; but in 1950, when the Conserva-tives regained 82 seats in all, Lancashire provided them with only 10. Since then Lancashire has provided a vision of a political stalemate rather than a picture of one party checkmat-ing the other within its boundaries. In 1951 the Conservatives just managed to wrest a further four Lancashire seats from Labor; and in 1955 Lancashire could offer them only one and that one, Preston South, by a majority of whispered in the bleak corridors of Transport House, the situation is different. Lancashire is hit by unemployment, the cotton industry has been hung from the yard-arm, Labor must surely reap the reward of its long courting not only of the cotton workers but also of the cotton em-

Clearly if Labor is to succeed any where it should be in Lancashire. And yet the harsh, detailed fact as seen at the present time is that Labor will be lucky if it gains six seats in Lancashire.

The closing of some 60 mills in the four years obviously is a fact of political importance, replacing as it does the 1955 Conservative image of security with the Socialist incubator of fear. But the salient political point about unemployment is that its incidence is necessarily most severe in safe Labor seats.

Local Majorities

The majorities in those seats may well rise as in fact the majority ros in the coal-chemical-cotton constituency of Wigan in the June, 1958, byelection; but majorities rising in towns like Wigan, Warrington, Burnley, and Barrow in Furness will not help Labor towards a famous electoral victory.

There is a school of thought which holds that the next election will not be won by Labor or lost outright by the Conservatives. It will, say some psephologists, be presented to the Labor party as a burnt-finger offering by the Liberals with their expected 220 candi-

And certainly some of those candi-dates are placed in extremely uncomfortable constituencies for the Conserva-tive party: But in Lancashire the Liberals have behaved—so far—less disturbingly to Lord Hailsham. In the 62 seats they have only nine candidates, though that in itself is a three-fold increase on the number who stood in 1955; but only two of these are, from the Labor party's point of view, in tactically sited constituencies.

The conclusion seems irresistible Lancashire offers, if not nobght, at any rate little for Labor's comfort. It is probably true that Labor (with majorities going down as low as 155) will not lose any seats. Nor will it gain any dramatic electoral success; a far more probable outcome would seem to be that Lancashire voters will simply stay at home as they did to some degree

Mock Auction Sales

LONDON—They are trying to get a bill through parliament that will put a stop to the mock auctions. At present there is no legislation forceful enough to prevent these so-called auctioneers from fleecing the public.

At the height of the summer there are 1,500 mock auctions operating throughout the country. In London and other large cities they are in action throughout the year, but the summer is the boom time, with the sharp char-acters opening up their auctions at the sea-side holiday resorts. It is estimated that with their shoddy merchandise they relieve the gullible of just on $25,000,000 annually

The "run out boys" (called that because they're always ready to be on the move fast) set up in business in empty shops They have some good wares on display, which they never get around to auctioning. What they sell is junk, and how they sell it is by the basic method of getting people to buy their own money

It requires fast talking and much use of their theme song: "I'll tell you what I'll do ..." Once you hear them say that to a wouldcustomer, you know the poor fish is

Someone who had been associated with the racket explained to me how it works in its simplest form.

The auctioneer holds up a vase, say, which cost him about sixpence, if that. He says it's surplus stock worth a pound or more but he's going to let anyone have it at the ridiculously low figure of three shillings. one hands him up a 10-shilling note

There is much fast talking and then the auctioneer says to the man who has handed him the money: "I'll tell you what I'll do.

him the money: "I'll tell you what I'll do.
I have here this 3-shilling vase and this 10shilling note. Total value—13 shillings. Will you buy the lot for five shillings?"

To the sucker this seems like a good thing—a vase and a 10-shilling note for only five bob. He promptly forks up, and it's only when he's outside on his way home that he values has been fest talked into that he realizes he has been fast-talked into buying his own 10-shilling note back, plus wase, for which he has paid five shillings instead of three.

In cold print it sounds like an obvious p. But at mock auctions I've watched, fascinated, as people have been caught on that time and time again.

Right now there is no law that prevents a fool being parted from his money in this way. Only law that could curb the run-out boys is an Act of 1845, by which an auc-tioneer must display his name and address ominently

But although this would help the public when they've been cheated, the law is never strictly enforced. The new Mock Auctions Bill is designed to give the police power to actually close up the mock auctions.

Another sure fire trick used by London's another sure life trick used by London's spivs. Barrow boys selling fruit distract you as they're giving you your change, and drop a coin among the oranges. You return claiming you've been short-changed, and innocently they find the lost coin in the fruit. If you don't come back, they keep it If you don't come back—they keep it.

By DR. WALTER C. ALVAREZ Psychiatric Theory Maker

I have just been reading an interesting book by Dr. Jessie Taft on the life of Otto Rank, her long-time friend and revered teacher of psychiatry. The reason this book interests me so much is that it shows so clearly what sort of man some years ago gave a school of psychiatrists one of the basic theories on which they have been since worked. Dr. Taft shows, by quoting from the journal that Rank kept when he was a youth, that he was a typical schizoid or mildly schizophrenic person. He wrote, "I feel for most people no sym-pathy; only for animals. I have an aversion to every contact with people, I mean even to every physical contact. costs me an effort to extend my hand to anyone, and if I must do it, I first put on gloves. I couldn't kiss anyone."

All schizoid persons who may read this column will recognize one of their main difficulties, which I call "touch me-not-ness." Fortunately, I learned in my intern days that I must never touch a schizoid even on his arm because he would pull it away fromme as if I had seared it with a hot iron.

Later, in his journal, Rank described his typical manic depressive temperament. He said, "I fell into feverish activity, I worked from eight to 10 hours a day . . ; suddenly in one day, as if in an ecstasy, I wrote down a four-act drama." He went on to say that in such a spell he felt "like a lightning con-ductor of God."

In describing another spell of mania he wrote, "Myriads of thoughts would go through my head, so fast that . . . I never once had time even to write them all down." Later, in his diary, he wrote, "I am alone, quite alone. I have no one with whom I can speak, no one to whom I can write, have been alone for the longest time, entirely concentrated on myself. I associate only with myself, with forms that I create." As he went on to say, he had always been a dreamer and a maker of fantasies. Like so many men of this type, who one finds in mental hospitals, he soon was feeling that he belonged to the group of heroes like Napoleon, Nietzsche, Goethe, and Wagner. He soon decided that he would never do any of the ordinary work of this world; that would be beneath a great poet and artist like him. Then he became fascinated with Freud's writings, and started analyzing his Next, he started analyzing at great length the operas of Wagner. By the time he was 22 he said, "Now I see everything clearly: the world process is no longer a riddle; I can explain the whole culture; yes, I can explain everything!"

Next, he became obsessed with sex and began writing about it. He became convinced that the greatest cause of mental up-sets arises out of the great trauma that an infant goes through as he is being born. The fact that infants haven't much of a brain to feel with apparently escaped him. Soon he wrote a book called, "The Artist, An Approach to a Sexual Psychology." Let us note that this all came out of his inner consciousness. This youth who had had no scientific or medical training or any experience with mentally disturbed patients (except himself), suddenly proposed to tell the psychiatrists of the world all that they needed to know

As one would have expected of a book dashed off by a mentally disturbed youth, much of it was gibberish and, as Dr. Taft says, it "is exceedingly obscure and difficult to understand." But, as I have had occasion to say before in this column, one of the surest ways to become famous in this world is to write a book that nobody can quite understand. Then thousands of people are sure that if must be exceedingly profound and exceedingly wise. Also, they are proud as Punch because they feel that only are clever enough to understand a text that has been rejected by scientists. Because the book was so hard to understand, it made a great hit, and went through four editions. Soon is was affecting the thinking of psychiatrists all over the world. It founded a school of psychiatrists!

Twenty-two delegates from CCF clubs in Victoria, Oak Bay, Saanich and Esquimalt will be among more than 200 expected to be present from all parts of B.C.

A draft policy was sent to all local clubs about two months ago. Since then com-ments and criticisms have been forwarded to the Vancouver headquarters of the party. They will be reviewed when the work of hammering out new policy gets under way.

Although details of the draft policy have not been made public, it was learned many veteran members feel it tends to move further away from the Socialistic concepts as laid down at the Regina founding of the group in the '30s.

One party spokesman inter-prets the draft policy as an attempt to win support from for-nine innings twice a day, and he must sit the hot spells out.

Desire was your most important talent as a player. It took you to the big leagues. But how does a manager distribute ambition to the 25 ballplayers on his, squad? Do you tell the clubhouse boy to hang it in the lockers with the uniforms? Does the road secretary hand it out with the meal money? How can you, filling in around the infield, going to bat in a crisis, show them how to do it when you hit so little last year that the National League doesn't carry your average and neither does your team's roster?

You were a scrambler from the beginning in '46 with Pocatello. That was your greatest year. You hit .363 that glorious season and it would never happen again. But even then you were short. You lost the batting championship of the Pioneer League to Charlie Henson hy, 0001. Where is Charlie, leader of the Pioneer League, now? Where are most of them who came into baseball when you did? Where are all the glad hitters, the joyous fielders, the happy runners, the sweet throwers?

You were victimized by your body. You're five nine but you felt stunted. You never had the grace or the speed. Your moves were counterfeited from observation. Your actions were copied from other guys, all your motions rehearsed

Most of the time with the Cardinals you were an odd jobs man around the infield. You held on for a couple of years but they sent you down to Columbus in '50. You were watching managers even then. You ran the club in your mind. You knew that would be your talent, telling the good ones how to do it when you couldn't do it yourself. No great player, including Ty Cobb or Walter Johnson, ever made a great manager. That consoled you.

You came back with the Cards in '51 and stayed there until '56 when they traded you to Philadelphia. You didn't know it then but you made the smartest play of your life when you left. You sent a gracious letter to Gussy Busch, who owns the franchise. You thanked him for the years you had been in the big leagues.

The note flattered Busch. That letter was the only one of its kind Busch ever received. When it came time last year to get a guy to take Fred Hutchinson's job, you were Busch's

You took some of it from Bill Brendel, who managed Pocatello; from Marty Marion, from Mayo Smith, but, most of all, from Eddie Stanky. You are very much alike. He, too, has always been short but he has used the small skills as most men use the big ones.

What Happens Depends on Musial

If you couldn't hit the ball, you let it hit you. And in '52 and '53 you led the National League in getting struck by pitched balls. It is the most revealing of all the statistics in your history as a player.

It is possible that the Cardinals could finish last instead of seventh if Musial has an off year. What he does will decide what happens during your first season as a manager. It is an unfair test of your ability because most baseball people believe you will make a competent manager. They were sure of Stanky, too, but he irritated the players with his

You decided to put Musial in the outfield so that Joe Cunningham could play first base. But Musial was brought into the infield because his feeble arm grows weaker. He can't cover the ground either.

The infield is all right, but never has Vinegar Bend Mizell been the pitcher he was touted to be. Then it's Larry Jackson, who pitched 500 in '57, and Ernie Brogilio, a minor six years, some untested kids and time-used vet-Marvin Grissom is in the bullpen but he has thrown too many baseballs in too many games. LOES GETS HIS WISH; TRADED TO SENATORS

ORLANDO, Fla. (AP) — Baltimore traded Billy Loes, temperamental righthanded pitcher, to Washington Senators Wednesday for Vito Valentinetti, another righthander.

The 29-year-old Loes has been in hot water with Baltimore manager Paul Richards since early in 1958 when he objected to the way he was used in relief. The outspoken Loes has often been quoted as wishing the Orioles would trade him.

Last season was Loes' worst in his nine-year major league career.

Signed by the Dodgers, then in Brooklyn, for a $21,000 bonus in 1948, Loes made the majors two years later. In 1956, the Dodgers sold him to Balti-

Island was brewed at New Westminster.

This move will result in increased year-round employment at the John Labatt Ltd. subsidiary, Lucky Lager Breweries Ltd., in Victoria.

Months of exacting quality control tests, and extensive modernization of equipment was undertaken to ensure that Labatt's original pilsen recipe would be accurately reproduced at the Victoria brewery. The recipe was created by European master brewers in Pilsen, and uses yeast flown here from Europe. It was awarded the "Prix d'Excellence", highest award won in North America, at the Belgium World Beer Competition

New Safety Rules Coming Out Soon

edition will be out in the next few weeks.

By KEN KELLY

OTTAWA (CP) - Pleasure boat owners will be advised in the next few weeks of new safety regulations affecting them this summer.

Small vessel regulations under the Canada Shipping Act, consolidated into one volume for the first time last year, have been changed slightly for the forthcoming boating season to increase safety features.

And once again the transport department will under-take distribution of a booklet tors will be included in the to make the safety and other transport department's publi-boating regulations known to cation Safety Afloat. A new small boat owners, whose numbers have increased rmously in recent years.

One of the changes requires operators of craft under 18 feet in length to carry a fire extinguisher if the fuel tank is fixed to or built into the boat or if built-in heating and cooking stoves that burn gas or liquid are carried.

Outboards Too

Previously an extinguisher was required in this size boat only if it carried an inboard motor. Now outboard-motor craft with built-in tanks are being covered.

Additions are being made to the safety regulations on water skiing. Boats towing skiers, water sleds or surf boards will require two occupants one to steer and the other to watch

Still in effect are requirements that such boats not endanger navigation, life or limb and that this sport stop an hour before sunset and not begin until an hour after

Maximum penalty for breaking these regulations remains at a $500 fine or six months in jail if the fine isn't paid. The court also may bar the convicted person from operating a small boat for up to a

A new warning to boat op-erators to take special care in areas where planes are landing on or taking off from the water has been inserted. While landing and taking off planes cannot manoeuvre as easily as boats, although the plane legally is treated as a boat while it is on the water.

Flares A Must

Operators of bigger pleasure craft also are affected by regulation changes. Those with boats over 26 feet will have to carry warning flares and vessels over 65 feet will require two lifebuoys instead of only one. Boats between 26 and 40 feet in length will have to carry a 50 foot heaving line separate from the required lifebuoy. Previously the heaving line had to be attached to the life-

BEST SCOUTS ANALYZE THE BUG' ON WHIRL THROUGH

By TONY DICKASON

Fine-appearing young men.

And all good scouts.

These are the Queen's Scouts, 125 strong from all parts of B.C., here today to receive Queen's Scout certificates from Lieutenant-Governor Frank Ross, patron of scouting in the province.

This mornin morning, before an official luncheon at the Em press Hotel after which awards were slated to be made the youths toured the Legislative Buildings, made faces at the fotems in Thunderbird Park, moved carefully through historically-crowded Helmcken House and splashed in

The youths are not alone. Twenty-three Girl Guides also from all parts of B.C., are here to receive their Gold Cord certificates, highest honor in guiding.

Most of the girls were shopping earlier today. The scouts did an impromptu analysis of scouting benefits at their "rendezvous" point, Thunderbird Park, prior to taking off on the morning of activities.

Gordon Stone, 16, member of the 22nd Navaho Troop,

Vancouver, five years a scout, including four years in England, said he liked the life "because it is outdoors. I think I'll go into forestry later. And what better train ing could you get?"

Wayne Kirby, 18, 2nd Burnaby Mountain Troop, a scout four years and a would be teacher, said scouting provided "all-round training which could be essential to a good teacher." He's near the start of his normal school career—now in grade 12.

Ken Pearse, 15, 1st Cumberland Troop, a grade nine pupil, has also been a scout four years. He likes the training because "it keeps you out of gangs, and all that."

John Kennedy, a Sea Scout, aged 15 and in grade 10, is a member of the 1st Shawnigan Troop. He's "crazy" about boats and gets training in the life afloat via scouting

"and a lot of other interesting things, too."

Bob Richards, 15, 1st Wells Troop—Wells, he explained, is 50 miles east of Quesnel-said he enjoyed the movement as "I like the out-of-doors, and sports." He was born in Victoria, has been a scout three and one-half years, and had the highest number of proficiency badges encountered Ken Miller, 16, 2nd Rossland Troop, said he enjoyed "the company and the camping" in scout life.

Robert Gordon, 15, 1st Prince Rupert Troop, has been cout three years, and while not specific about likes or dislikes emphasized that "I've learned a lot."

Roy Harding, 16, 3rd Vernon Troop, five years a scout, stumbled slightly over the word "synonymous" before

"I like the outdoors and this is synonymous with scouting," said the "veteran" of five years. He has a proficiency badge for each of his 11 years in school.

Mainland scouts and guides travelled here Wednesday aboard two RCN frigates. They are billeted in various Victoria homes that are "friends" of the movement.

Tonight at 6.30, also in the Empress, the R.C. Scouts Provincial Council will be banquet host to the visitors when Victoria Daily Times editor. Bruce Hutchison will

Barking for Monte Roberts

I have been asked to come out of retirement and we my opinion on the doggie situation in Oak Bay but first in case you have forgotten I will tell you who I am namely the female-type doggie Judy Boots Streak who used to live in the Old Man's house but now he lives in a house too small for such a doggie as me I am retired and live in the country namely Sooke where it is lovely and I am taking care of two very nice ladies and having onderful time thank you very much.

Well naturally I have been reading with great interest

about the goings on in Oak Bay where the Society for the Prevention of Cruelty to Animals has been busier than a housewife cooking a four-burner dinner on a two-burner

But before I give my opinion on what is going on in Oak Bay I wish to state I have a very soft spot in my heart indeed for the SPCA. I have visited the SPCA shelter on many occasions and finer hospitality you couldn't find anywhere.

About this Oak Bay situation however the way I see it there are Indignant Citizens in Oak Bay which they do not like to have doggies running all around and about over their daffy down dillies and tulips.

So they the indignant citizens I mean have persuaded the SPCA to organize posses and ride across the prairie hard and fast rounding up doggies because the indignant citizens feel the doggies should be kept inside a yard with a fence around it.

Well the indignant citizens may have a point there but I do not know for sure whether it is up to the doggie to build a fence around his yard to keep himself in or whether it is up to the indignant citizens to build fences around THEIR yards to keep the doggies OUT.

I say this without meaning any offence oh dear have I committed a pun? the Old Man will never forgive

But as to my opinion on the doggie situation in Oak Bay I guess I am prejudiced so I will make my opinions

Opinion No. 1: In my opinion, I am glad I am living In friendly Sooke and not among the indignant citizens

Opinion No. 2: In my opinion, there is little if any truth to the rumor the SPCA is changing its name to the Society for the Prevention of Animals.

And I continue to wish the SPCA every sookecess

oh dear I think I have committed another pun whatever will the Old Man say?

CONFIDENTIALLY YOURS

MONTREAL, Apr. 2nd — Wake up to a breakfast treat that's delicious, nutritious and wonderfully healthful, too. . . Do start these beautiful days with a nourishing, piping hot breakfast of RED RIVER CEREAL! I feel so sure you'll enjoy the nutty, wholesome flavor of the Red River blend of cracked wheat, ryand, flax — that I'm urging you to get some this very week. Look for the cheery red package on the grocery shelves — and serve your family a breakfast which supplies the energy requirements for little ones and active workers. Older people, and sedentary workers, find it guards regularity. Do serve Red River Cereal tomorrow!

HAVE YOU USED SPIC AND SPAN IN YOUR WASH YET? 268

housewives in Brandon, Manitoba, did—and the results were exciting. In a special test, Brandon women reported overwhelmingly that you get cleaner, whiter clothes by adding SPIC AND SPAN to your wash. You use your regular detergent and ¼ cup of pine-scented Spic and Span. Spic and Span is a fine, safe cleaning agent and a natural water softener. Working with the detergent, it adds EXTRA CLEANING POWER to give you the whitest, freshest wash you ever hung on your line. You'll be delighted—as I was—at how wonderful your wash will look after adding Spic and Span.

Toronto Maple Leafs Play Boston Bruins at Boston Tonight at 6

By PHIL LEE, Thy's TV Editor

HOCKEY TONIGHT, SATURDAY-Local hockey devotees should be delighted to learn that the CEC has recanted from its previous stand that it will telecast only "decisive" games. Tonight the national net-work will carry live, starting at 6 on Channels 6 and the semi-final game between Toronto and Boston, from Boston, in the Stanley Cup series.

20MR PELLI

TV TEE-HEES

On Saturday the net-work will carry live from Chicago the semifinal game between Montreal Canadiens and the Chicago Black Hawks. Channels 6 and 2, starting at 6 p.m.

It is understood that the network's decision to carry Thursday's game was sparked by Toronto's second overtime win against Bostion, that ignited hockey talk across the country to such a degree that "Let's stay home tonight and inthe CBC felt within its suit the gresses the girls on the right in pre-empting panel will be wearing!" other programs to make way for the game. Of interest to local boatmen CBUT, Vancouver, who deserts his father's farm to will bring in a new program designed to those who Army during the U.S. Civil War.

Bob Fortune, CBUT weatherman and boating enthusiast, will host the program to be called, "Pleasure Boating." It will use films, studio demonstrations and interviews to make its points.

Channel' 4: Music Theatre offers "An Almost Perfect Plan." The Japanese soda jerk enjoys western those with cancer and beautiful plane.

Through the season, we'll nave something for those with canoes as well as those with large yachts," explained producer Andy Snider. "We'll try to show on film some of the places close by you can reach by small outboard and dinghy and we'll show some more small outboard and dinghy and we'll show some more contents in "In Lonely Expectation." Mrs. Runnells outboard in the season, we'll nave something for the season, we'll nave something for the something for the season, we'll nave something for the season with large yachts,"

Channel 5: Real McCoys: "Batter Up," wherein the season was a season with the season was a season with the season was a season with the season was a season with the season with the season was a season extended voyages. We will have something on safety, on seamanship, racing and so on. Perhaps we'll even go into the less obvious but highly important matters like cooking in small boats."

There, I would say, is a program that has been needed for some time. * * *

CHOKED IN MY COKE Tuesday night when I dialed in Steve Canyon instead of the new "Pete Kelly's Blues" series that I had carefully headlined as making its debut that night. Fumed for the next 30 minutes to find out what had happened. Seems now as though they're going to bow it in on Saturday night at 8.30, Channel 4.

It may have been my frame of mind after this that caused me to regard the new Jimmie Rodgers Show with such a jaundiced eye. In fact I'm still so snow with such a jaundiced eye. In fact I'm still so jaundiced about this bit of musical ikketypoo that I'll wait for another week before attempting to review it.

The Masters' Golf Tournament will be telecast on the CBS-TV network and Channels 7, 12, in two special REALISTIC PROPOSALS "We shall continue these negotiations and discussions. We shall continue to make con-crete and realistic proposals for disarmament, for a just solution to the problems of Germany, for European security and for co-operation in the newly opening realm of outer space. "Although we shall always avoid substituting illusions for reality, we shall continue to strive for a more general and far-reaching, but always practical, settlement of differences with the Soviets."

The first business sessions were to be held in the afternoon to discuss the Soviet threat to Berlin and learn the general lines which Britain, the United States, West Germany and France have developed for meeting it. Eisenhower said that after the war there was hope that "mankind had begun to put aside the weapons of war in favor of tools of peace."

Almost simultaneously with the realization of this fact came the rise of a new dictatorship-Soviet communism-with such great power that it "openly challenged the concepts of jus-tice and freedom which our respective nations adhere to and support."

Spaak, at a press conference Wednesday night, summed up the theme of the session insofar as the Berlin problem is concerned — emphasizing the grave dangers which Berlin holds for the West.

"I don't believe we'll have a Spaak said, "but if we don't have a war we cannot suffer a diplomatic defeat in Berlin. It might be the first sign of a disintegration of the alliance and of the West."

Billion Dollar Hydro Plan over said. To Harness Columbia River Man Admits

A $1,000,000,000 plan for developing the hydro-electric potential of the Columbia River in British Columbia has been advanced by the International Joint Com-

The plan would provide for 60 per cent of the power needs of British Columbia and the Pacific Northwest of the United States by 1985. It calls for building of at least eight great dams across the Columbia River which rises in B.C., crosses the border near Trail and flows through the northwest states to the Pacific.

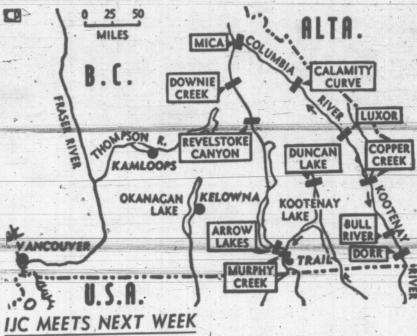

The map below shows location of dams proposed under three schemes submitted by the international Columbia River engineering board. Arrow shows the normal direction of river flow.

The scheme which the engineering board appears to favor calls for diversion of the Kootenay into the Columbia with a dam at Copper Creek. Other dams under this scheme would be built at Luxor, Calamity Curve, Mica, Downie Creek, Revelstoke Canyon, Arrow Lakes and Murphy Creek.

Biggest dam would be one costing $327,000,000 at Mica, where the Columbia turns southward. Another scheme calls for diversion of the Kootenay into the Columbia at Dorr, about 10 miles north of the U.S. border, and at Bull River.

Under the third scheme, there would be no diversion. This would eliminate proposed dams at Dorr, Copper Creek, Luxor and Calamity Curve.

WASHINGTON (AP)-President Eisenhower lauded the Atlantic alliance today as a powerful barrier against Communism but cautioned the allies to prepare for more years of tension and bickering with Russia.

He called on the free world for unity, strength and perse-verance to win the struggle for a true and lasting peace and threats".

He said: Those who respect the dignity of man will not fail before the magnitude of the task."

He offered every possible negotation with Russia which holds "promise of constructive results' But he cautioned against the danger of "substituting illusion for reality".

Eisenhower, himself a former supreme commander of NATO military forces, was the central figure at the opening session of the 10th anniversary meeting of the NATO council of foreign ministers. Before him was an audience of 1,400 cabinet members, allied diplomats, Western military leaders and world press representation, Ranged in a semi-circle on the stage behind him were the foreign ministers or other delegation chiefs of the 15 allied governments, their flags colorful in the focus of flood-

Eisenhower and the other speakers - Secretary-General Paul-Henri Spaak of Belgium and Council President Joseph M A. H. Luns of The Nether-lands projected NATO's policy along double lines into the indefinite future. They said the Communist threat is at least as great as it was 10 years ago and that NATO must strengthen itself. They stressed a need to negotiate when possible.

Eisenhower said that since the alliance was formed "there has been no further Commun ist advance in Europe either by political or military means

TORONTO (CP) - Sherritt Gordon Mines, Ltd., Wednes day reported net profit of $3,-234,000 or 29 cents a share for 1958, compared with $5,476,000 or 48 cents in 1957.

The company, in its annual report, attributed lower profits to lower prices received for metals. Operating costs were substantially higher due to lower grade mill feed, higher labor costs and the cost of purchased concentrate.

Increased demand for Labatt's Pilsener beer on the Island has enabled the company to bottle this brand Previously all Labatt's Pilsener for sale on Vancouver Island was brewed at New Westminster.

This move will result in increased year-round employment at the John Labatt Ltd. subsidiary, Lucky Lager Breweries Ltd., in Victoria.

Months of exacting quality control tests, and extensive modernization of equipment was undertaken to ensure that Labatt's original pilsen recipe would be accurately reproduced at the Victoria brewery. The recipe was created by European master brewers in Pilsen, and uses yeast flown here from Europe. It was awarded the "Prix d'Excellence", highest award won in North America, at the Belgium World Beer Competition in 1958.

We take pleasure in expanding our participation in the economic and social life of Vancouver Island.

ROY HARDING,

B.C.'s BEST SCOUTS ANALYZE WHIRL THROUGH

Fine appearing young men. And all good scouts.

These are the Queen Scouts, 125 strong from all parts of B.C., here today to receive Queen Scout certificates from Lieutenant-Governor Frank Ross, patron of scouting in the province.

This morning, before an official luncheon at the Em es-Hotel-afte the youths toured the Legislative Buildings, made faces at the totems in Thunderbird Park, moved carefully through historically crowded Helmcken House and splashed in the

The youths are not alone. Twenty-three Girl Guides, also from all parts of B.C., are here to receive their Gold Cord certificates, highest honor in guiding.

Most of the girls were shopping earlier today. The scouts did an impromptu analysis of scouting benefits at their "rendezvous" point, Thunderbird Park, prior to taking off on the morning of activities.

Gordon Stone, 16, member of the 22nd Navaho Troop,

Vancouver, five years a scout, including four years in England, said he lifed the life "because it is outdoors. I think I'll go into forestry later. And what better train-

Wayne Kirby, 18, 2nd Burnaby Mountain Troop, a scout four years and a would be teacher, said scouting provided "all round training which could be essential to a good teacher." He's near the start of his normal school career—now in grade 12.

Ken Pearse, 15, 1st Cumberland Troop, a grade nine pupil, has also been a scout four years. He likes the training because "it keeps you out of gangs, and all that."

John Kennedy, a Sea Scout, aged 15 and in grade 10, is a member of the 1st Shawnigan Troop. He's "crazy" about boats and gets training in the life afloat via scouting

"and a lot of other interesting things, too."

Bob Richards, 15, 1st Wells Troop—Wells, he explained. is 50 miles east of Quesnel—said he enjoyed the movement as "I like the out-of-doors, and sports." He was born in ia, has been a scout three and one half years, and had the highest number of proficiency badges encountered

Ken Miller, 16, 2nd Rossland Troop, said he enjoyed? "the company and the camping" in scout life,

Robert Gordon, 15, 1st Prince Rupert Troop, has been scout three years, and while not specific about likes or dislikes emphasized that "I've learned a lot."

Roy Harding, 16, 3rd Vernon Troop, five years a scout, stumbled slightly over the word "synonomous" before easing it out correctly.

'I like the outdoors and this is synonomous with scouting," said the "veteran" of five years. He has a proficiency badge for each of his 11 years in school. Mainland scouts and guides travelled here Wednesday aboard two RCN frigates. They are billeted in various victoria homes that are "friends" of the movement.

Tonight at 6.30, also in the Empress, the B.C. Scouts Provincial Council will be banquet host to the visitors when Victoria Daily Times editor Bruce Hurchison will speak.

As one scout leader stated earlier today: "Weatherwise, scoutwise and guidewise, this couldn't be a better day, in every way."

JUDY BOOTS

Barking for Monte Roberts

I have been asked to come out of retirement and give my opinion on the doggie situation in Oak Bay but first in case you have forgotten I will tell you who I am namely the female-type doggie Judy Boots Streak who used to live in the Old Man's house but now he lives in a house too small for such a doggie as me I am retired and live in the country namely Sooke where it is lovely and I am taking care of two very nice ladies and having a wonderful time thank you very much.

Well naturally I have been reading with great interest

about the goings on in Oak Bay where the Society for the Prevention of Cruelty to Animals has been busier than a housewife cooking a four-burner dinner on a two-burner

But before I give my opinion on what is going on in Oak Bay I wish to state I have a very soft spot in my heart indeed for the SPCA. I have visited the SPCA shelter on many occasions and finer hospitality you couldn't find anywhere.

About this Oak Bay situation however the way I see it there are Indignant Citizens in Oak Bay which they do not like to have doggies running all around and about over their daffy down dillies and tulips.

So they the indignant citizens I mean have persuaded the SPCA to organize posses and ride across the prairie hard and fast rounding up doggies because the indignant citizens feel the doggles should be kept inside a yard

Well the indignant citizens may have a point there but I do not know for sure whether it is up to the doggie to build a fence around his yard to keep himself in or whether it is up to the indignant citizens to build fences around THEIR yards to keep the doggles OUT.

I say this without meaning any offence on dear have I committed a pun? the Old Man will, never forgive

But as to my opinion on the doggle situation in Oak Bay I guess I am prejudiced so I will make my opinions

Opinion No. 1: In my opinion, I am glad I am living In friendly Sooke and not among the indignant citizens

Opinion No. 2: In my opinion, there is little if any truth to the rumor the SPCA is changing its name to the Society for the Prevention of Animals.

And I continue to wish the SPCA every sookecess oh dear I think I have committed another pun whatever will the Old Man say?

SHIPS THAT PASSED in the night now are berthed side by side for the first time in their long careers with the CPR. Night steamers, Elizabeth and Joan, which for 30 years crisscrossed routes from Victoria to l'ancouver, are now retired from service, lying at the Belleville Street docks of their owners, awaiting disposal. Repairs estimated at $2,000,000 per ship would be needed to put them back in shape. Steamship certificates of both have expired.
